Language, Literacy Communication
Social and Emotional Development
Exploration, Approaches To Learning.
Purposeful Motor Activity
Sensory Organization
Pre-Writing (Toddlers)

Pre-Writing samples are gathered monthly. Samples may be attempts to write names or documentation of activities like finger painting, writing with fingers in the sand, etc. The documentation may be the writing itself or a photo of the child doing an activity. Also, identify the writing stage of each writing sample entry (scribbling, mock handwriting, mock letters, conventional letters, invented spelling, approximated spelling, or conventional spelling)

All other samples are to be gathered at least once each quarter. If a child is considered an English Language Learner (English is not the child's primary language) then samples for this domain should also be collected quarterly
